

ANNOUNCING A TWO-SESSION STUDY GROUP

Only Some Of The Many Lessons For Human Services From The Covid Pandemic

To be facilitated on Zoom

LED BY:

Susan Thomas of the Training Institute at Syracuse University

Ms. Thomas is the long-time Training Coordinator at the Training Institute for Human Service Planning, Leadership, and Change Agency at Syracuse University. The Institute was founded by the service leader and reformer Dr. Wolf Wolfensberger in 1973, and headed by him until his death in 2011. Ms. Thomas worked with him for almost all those years, and is now carrying on much of his teaching.

ABOUT THIS OPPORTUNITY:

To say the least, the period since mid-March 2020 and the present has been a time in which all sorts of practices, routines and rhythms, concepts, and expectations for how life should be conducted and for what might be achievable for the people served have been upset. The suddenness as well as the extremity of these changes has surprised many people, even overwhelmed some, and what the future will look like as a result is still very unclear. Some people believe that once enough people are vaccinated against the virus, things will return to the way they were before March 2020, "back to normal."

In these two sessions, we will look at some of the lessons in all this, with special reference to human services. However, there are so very many lessons that can be drawn--and that we all would do well to learn--that we will only be able to pull out and discuss some of them.

This study group is designed for people who have knowledge of SRV through a one-day workshop or more.

SESSION INFORMATION:

Each session will be conducted as a lecture presentation, followed by questions and discussion.
